Antarctica cruising with the Corinthian: an ice-strengthened ship, built in Italy in 2009. The 100-passenger vessel received a $5-million renovation after a recent acquisition in 2014, which aimed to give the expedition ship a more intimate feel; with extensive refurbishment, redecoration and other improvements, the all-suite Corinthian offers the finest in small-ship cruise travel. Its' last refurbishment was in 2018.

This private yacht-like cruise ship accommodates only 100 guests in 50 suites, each of which affords ocean views, measures 215 square feet or more and is appointed with a sitting area or separate living room, twin or queen-size beds, spacious closets and air conditioning. Each suite includes satellite TV, DVD/CD player, telephone, mini-refrigerator, personal safes, clocks, marble-appointed bathroom with fine toiletries and teak floor, plush terry robes and slippers.

Decorated with rich fabrics, handsome wood, polished brass, rare antiques and fine works of art, the yacht's public spaces are warm and inviting. These include library with Internet access, two lounges with audiovisual facilities, state-of-the-art gym/spa, beauty salon & boutique, hospital, lift serving all passenger decks, dining room, two sun decks, jacuzzi, and a swimming platform.

Corinthian complies with the latest international and U.S. Coast Guard safety regulations and is outfitted with the most current navigational and communications technology as well as with retractable fin stabilizers for smooth sailing, an ice-strengthened hull and a fleet of Zodiacs. Corinthian is staffed by 60 European officers and crew. Taken together with her limited guest capacity, excellence of design, craftsmanship and material, Corinthian's spaciousness and intimate ambience combine to make her ideal for distinctive cultural and expedition voyages.
